Renovations Planned at Cosmo-Bethel Park

Columbia Parks and Recreation construction crews will begin constructing a new picnic shelter at Cosmo-Bethel Park this week. The shelter is only one of the major improvements planned at the park; a new parking lot to serve the shelter and a new playground will be built over the next few months.

The new shelter and parking lot will be located on the west side of the park, with access from Bethel Street. When completed, the shelter will be available by reservation for special events.

As weather permits, demolition of the existing playground will begin to make way for the construction of a new playground.

The cost of the shelter, parking lot and playground is $175,000, funded in part by the parks sales tax.
